First Aid Training

First aid is the emergency care a sick or injured person gets. In some cases, it may be the only care someone needs, while in others, it may help them until paramedics arrive or they are taken to the hospital. The best way to prepare for these events is to get official first aid training, but until you are able to do so, you can learn some basic life-saving steps.

Monthly Audits For Checking Quality

Franchises and corporate-owned stores follow a similar audit process. A district or regional manager typically comes in to evaluate certain components and programs using preset criteria, checklists, and guidelines.

For both types of stores, the audit may lead to the adoption of more efficient processes and procedures. Stores can implement improved inventory management and more effective visual merchandising and display practices. Achievement of preset Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) and financial metrics are also common audit benefits.
